

In my office, I am the primary decision maker and leader of the school. Before signing, the students must tell you what literary term refers to the turning point of a narrative work or its point of highest tension.

In my class, you will learn about Literature and Language and I am named after a famous breakfast food. Before signing, the students must tell you the 5 Points of View that a narrative piece can be written in.

In my class, I teach you about the periodic table and about different phases of the moon. Before signing, they must tell you what part of speech denotes an action.

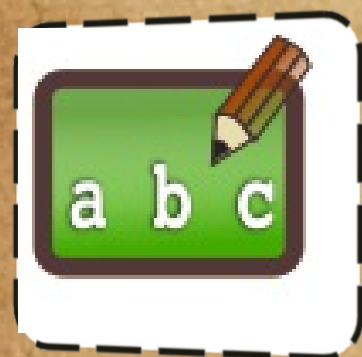

Thanks to me the office stays organized and your cell phones are returned safely everyday. Before signing, the students must tell you what an antonym is and give an example.

Thanks to me, each one of you is physically fit. Before signing, they must tell you that an adjective is a word that _____.

Thanks to me, Mr. Morgan's classroom is able to function smoothly. Before signing, the students must tell you what a synonym is and give an example.

You only get a chance to seat on me during recess or lunch.

