

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

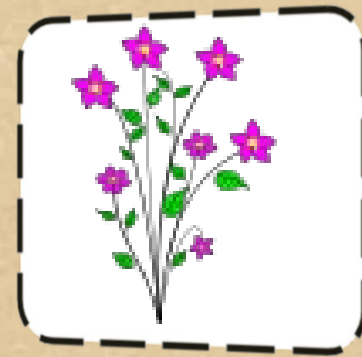

The first place to look is under your butt, in the chair where breakfast is served by your Husband the nut.

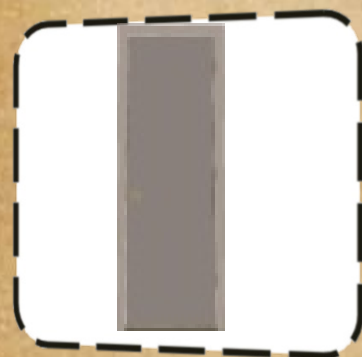

Look where its frozen and cheesy. Don't stay here too long or you'll surely get sneezy!

Go to the place where clothes spin and twirl. Don't run water in me or the next clue will unfurl.

Go look for the place where our cute friend is now rested. The place I hide clues is seldom bested!

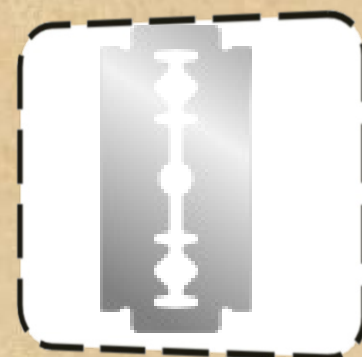

When the color of something wood or metal is not looking proper, look in the place at home where you can get something to top her.

Go looking for more paper, it comes in a sheet. Don't put in the printer. "Crappy" results- not too neat.

It's where I connect to the ether. At the end of the line without it, it radiates neither. It sways in the breeze, just keep me clear of trees.

Look in the room where the ceiling is lower. See what spins near your head for a clue to send you.

Look where friends & family can deliver to you except on days like that day. Hurry faster before the clue in a truck drives away.

Time to confess you are good at this game. For the the next clue you must feed the horses or they'll wind up lame.
