

find me in the overgrowth near the access hole to this dwelling you can fill me up with treasures galore

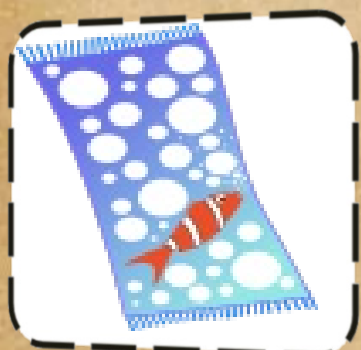

Look for me underneath where you receive things to read from a box not a screen but more old school you wear me to protect your optic nerves

Follow the black trail and look both ways before entering the green valley below where I hide in the V of a tree I am big and round and waiting for you

Continue down the concrete path to the east to the head of the sodium bath trail where you should rest your feet and find me waiting underneath the seat

Don't stop now but come back the way you first came and when you get to the vacant residence labeled 231 go to the rear and you will find something in blue that keeps you a float

You may need some comfort for your soles now so trek on westward until you come to the seat with a tractor on its back look below it towards where the water flows and you will find your comfort

Return to the place from whence you came and search between the two Aspens in the undergrowth to find me where I hide in wait for you to lie on me

Your mission is nearly complete inside the abode you will find a cover for your tired minds that will keep away the heat in the space where the queen of the castle rests
